How to get Patra

Travel to Patra, Greece: It is possible to travel to Patra in various means of transport, including ferry, plane, train, bus, and car.

By air

The nearest international airport is Athens International airport “Eleftherios Venizelos”. It is possible to travel to Patra in various means of transport, including, train, bus and car.

Athens – Patra by bus

Suburban buses (KTEL) to Patra depart from Kifissos Station in Athens almost every hour. The trip takes about 2,5 hours

The airport is connected to Kifissos Station by bus, No 093 which run every few minutes 24/7 and it takes about 50 minutes to reach the bus station. The bus station is located between exit 4 and 5 at the arrivals level.

Athens – Patra by train

The Suburban Railway (proastiakos) depart from the “Eleftherios Venizelos” airport in Athens to Patra every 09’ from, 06:09 to 19:09.

This unfortunately is not a direct line. You have to change train in Acharnes station and take the train to Kiato station. There you have to change again and take the bus (which will wait for you) to Patra. The itinerary takes 3 hours.

Athens – Patra by car

There are several companies where you can rent a car at “Eleftherios Venizelos” airport in Athens. From there you have to take “Attiki odos” to “Elefsis interchange” that will take you directly to ‘Olympia odos” to Patra. The distance from Eleftherios Venizelos” airport in Athens to the port of Patra is 240 km and will take you 2,5 hours to reach Patra in a brand new highway.

By boat

Patras is linked by ferry to the Italian ports of (south to north) Brindisi, Bari, Ancona and Venice with numerous sailings daily year-round. The Italian ferries go to the New Port which is about 4 kilometers from the city center. There is a bus from the port to the main bus terminal and city center. There is a taxi stand at the new port.

By road

Patra is located in the northeastern corner of the Peloponnese. You can reach Patra crossing Serbia and F.Y.R. of Macedonia and entering Greece in Evzonoi. From there you have to follow A1 until reaching “Egnatia Odos” to Ioannina and then the A5 to Antirio. Crossing the Rio-Antirio bridge you will arrive to Patra. The distance from Evzonoi to Patra is 508 km.
